STUDENT INDUCTION PROGRAMME

"Run, fox!" she shouted and the fox turned and ran away. But the tortoise was not so lucky. The leopard grabbed her before she could jump back into the pond.
"Ah! I am going to have a fine meal today," the leopard thought.
He tried to break the shell of the tortoise. But it was very hard. He bit it, put his paws on it, and scratched at it with his claws-but he could not break it at all. Inside the shell, the tortoise was shivering with fear.
Just then, she heard her friend's voice. "I can tell you how to get the tortoise out from her shell!" the fox shouted.
"How?" roared the angry leopard.
"Why don't you throw her back into the water?" said the fox. "Her shell will soak in the water and become soft. Then you can break it open easily," he said.
"You are right, said the leopard, "Thank you for the idea."
He picked up the tortoise and threw her back in the water. The fox ran away. The tortoise sank to the bottom and did not come up for many days.
The next time the two friends met, they were very happy together. But they also told each other, "We must always be very careful in the forest."

During the Induction programme students are aware of the code of conduct of the college. They cover a wide range of areas including academic integrity, conduct, grading, enrolment, Scholarships and campus safety. This awareness helps students navigate their college experience successfully and promotes a positive learning environment for all. Colleges often provide students with access to these through handbooks, College website, and orientation sessions. Students receive reminders or updates about the code of conduct throughout their time at college.
